Schneider Base Senso – The smart rollerball pen for learning to write without "pressure" and the solution for every writing problem.

Small things can make a big difference. This writing instrument is something truly special and a great problem-solver for many people, from young to old, healthy to handicapped, and especially for those who (still) do not get along well with a fountain pen.

Due to its writing pressure control, the Base Senso is ideal not only for beginners but also for children and adults with ADHD, people with motor difficulties, and all those who love gadgets – including both right and left-handed users. Schneider's goal from the outset was to cater to all these individuals in a solution-oriented and age-independent manner, providing them with fun and motivation right from the start in the complex fine motor skill of WRITING.

The Base Senso rollerball pen is equipped with a small warning light at the end of the pen, which lights up when the writer applies too much pressure. This way, everyone learns to apply the writing pressure correctly and guide the pen relaxed and freely.

The grip is rubberized for elasticity, prevents slipping, is ergonomically shaped for the correct writing posture, and the large finger surfaces avoid annoying and painful pressure points. It fits perfectly in the hand.

The rollerball pen is equipped with a replaceable Universal 852 cartridge in line width M, each with a new ball tip. The writing colour is royal blue, and the ink is erasable. It dries quickly and is smudge-proof when highlighting it later on.

The pen is processed in robust workmanship with anti-roll protection and includes a rubberized name tag to personalize the rollerball pen. The Base Senso is available in two different colour combinations, blue-turquoise and rose-red.

A comprehensive offer, environmentally friendly, and produced in Germany. Recommended by medical professionals.
